Celebrating A 75th Anniversary:
Loyola Is Recognized As A Leader In Catholic Education

Celebrating seventy-five years of dedication to the pursuit and discovery of truth, Loyola University is recognized as one of the leaders of Catholic education in the South.

The Jesuits were among the earliest settlers of Louisiana and the New Orleans area. As early as 1725, there was a question of opening a Jesuit college in New Orleans. In 1733, Father de Beaubois, who was in charge of the local Jesuit missions, petitioned the French government for a college to be established in New Orleans. The petition was ignored, and the college was to wait until another century.

The Jesuits returned to New Orleans in 1847 when the charter of the province was given. This charter, known as the "Societe Catholique d'Education Religieuse et Litteraire" was expanded March 6, 1856 by an amendment which empowered the corporation to confer "literary honors, degrees, and diplomas."

This resulted in a college of liberal arts and sciences known as Immaculate Conception, to which a preparatory school was attached. Popularly known as the "Jesus School," it was located on Baronne and Common Streets in downtown New Orleans. The first classes were held February 1, 1849, with a faculty of seven. The system of studies followed the "Ratio Studiorum" of the Jesuits which emphasized philosophy and the classics.

As the city grew, so did Jesuit education. Foreseeing the development of a new parish, the Reverend John O'Shanahan, S.J., superior of the southern Jesuits, purchased the tract of land opposite Audubon Park of St. Charles Ave. in 1889. A wooden church was erected May 29, 1892, by lay brothers of the New Orleans mission skilled in carpentry. The Reverend John Downey, S.J., was the first pastor and superior of the residence of the Holy Name of Jesus. This church was later dismantled and moved to Westwego.

On September 7, 1904, the St. Charles Avenue property became the home of an academy and college, both known as Loyola College, located at the rear of the church. The plan of studies, administration, and organization of the new school was identical to that of Immaculate Conception. Only one student was classified as a college student, while eight attended the academy.

Subjects such as Latin, Greek, French, math, history, geography, penmanship, elocution, and religion were taught. The first graduate was Basil R. Beltran, later to become a distinguished Philadelphian physician.

In 1907, the Marquette Association for Higher Education, with Mr. B.A. Oxnard as President, was organized for the purpose of establishing a university from the two colleges. The same group was responsible for the financing of Marquette Hall. On September 11, 1911, the colleges of Immaculate Conception and Loyola were to form a university with all studies taking place at the St. Charles Avenue site. Sixty-nine students registered when Loyola opened. Early in 1912, the university applied for a charter from the Louisiana General Assembly to be recognized as a university. The assembly granted the charter first in April, and then gave its final approval on July 10, 1912. Thus, Loyola was authorized to grant all university degrees.

The class of 1912 did not receive degrees under the charter, because it was not fully approved until the summer after their commencement. The first degrees under the charter were awarded in March, 1913. As a result of the early and complicated evolution of Loyola, she welcomed 1911 and 1912 graduates with chartered diplomas at the same time.

As the diamond anniversary edition of the Wolf is presented, we hope that each student may realize as he walks through Loyola that thousands have trod these same paths before, just as thousands will travel them in the future. Loyolans, this is your heritage.

Through Its 75 Years, Loyola Has Seen New Orleans Grow

The city of New Orleans beguiles resident and visitor alike. From the French Quarter, with its old brick and plaster buildings with iron-tatted balconies and narrow streets, to the new buildings that soar toward the gulf coast sky, this is the essence of our town. We are proud that Loyola University, with its students and staff, represent a part of this New Orlean's heritage.

ABOVE: A part of the New Orleans transit system is the wonderful, wooden-seated, clanging streetcar that travels the city's last trolley line. Streetcars run daily past the Loyola campus, up famous St. Charles Avenue. The line was built in 1835.
ABOVE RIGHT: Almost anywhere you care to wander in New Orleans you will find the excitement of the shops and stores. Jax's is no exception. It is a popular spot for local residents as well as tourists and visitors.
RIGHT: The French Quarter, or Vieux Carre, is seventy blocks between Canal Street, Rampart Street, Esplanade Avenue and the river. It formed the original settlement of New Orleans. In many ways the French Quarter is still the true heart of the city, not only because of its historical nature, but also because it is still very much alive.

TOP: Of all the mirrors of New Orlean's traditions and character, perhaps, none is so revealing as the city's fabulous food. Beignet's are square, fluffy, doughnut-like pastries, copiously covered with powdered sugar.
ABOVE LEFT: The Superdome is a multipurpose center designed to accomodate sporting events, trade shows, concerts and conventions. It is one of the largest indoor stadiums in the United States.
LEFT: The steamboat "Natchez" is a sternwheel steamboat that travels into the pages of history that made the river and her boats famous. The "Natchez" tours the Crescent City as it cruises up and down the Mississippi River.
ABOVE: A New Orleans tradition since 1948, the "Lucky Dogs" stands are familiar sights in the local area. Friendly vender's are eager to greet customers.

Albert Biever, S.J. 1904-1913

Legend has it that Rev. William Powers, S.J., then superior of the Jesuit province that included New Orleans, summoned Rev. Albert Biever, S.J., gave him a dime for car fare, and sent him uptown to establish a university. Later that same year, 1904, the first students of Loyola college registered.

By 1906, the college had grown. Father Biever called a Catholic men's conference to raise funds for a new building, which developed into Marquette Hall. Loyola merged with another local Jesuit college and became a university.

Loyola applied to the Louisiana General Assembly for formal recognition as a university. Upon hearing rumors that some assemblymen thought the Jesuits were incapable of conducting a university, Father Biever himself delivered a rousing speech in their favor. "The sun does not set on any part of the universe in which there is not a Jesuit university," he declared. He must have convinced the assembly, for Loyola was authorized to grant university degrees in July of 1912.

Father Biever became the first president of Loyola, His years of effort and dedication helped make the Jesuit dream of a university in New Orleans a reality.

James C. Carter, S.J. 1974-Present

Father James Carter, S.J., the current president of Loyola, was born in New York City and was ordained as a priest at Woodstock College, MD in 1958.

He joined the Loyola University staff in 1960 as an assistant professor of Physics. In 1967 he became an associate professor of Physics. From 1968-1970 he served as the director of education, for the New Orleans province of the Society of Jesus. He became the academic vice-president for the university in 1970 and remained in that position until 1974 when he became the current president of Loyola university.

He received a BS degree in Physics from Spring Hill College in 1952; a MS from Fordham University in 1953, also in Physics; STL in theology from Woodstock College in 1959 and a PhD in physics from the Catholic University of America in 1956.

Father Carter has seen just about as many changes at Loyola as Father Biever did when the school was young. Since assuming the office in 1974, Father Carter has busied himself with the changes necessary to take Loyola into the 21st century.

Loyola's History Today

Past decades of Loyola history are reflected in the buildings throughout the campus. Reflections of the past combined with modern architecture help create the imprint of our ever changing time. Each building, with its history and style combine to make Loyola University unique among urban campuses.

Marquette Hall is the oldest building on the present campus. Built in 1910-1911, it is named in honor of Jacques Marquette, a missionary and explorer. It houses the administrative offices, including the office of the president. Classes are conducted in the building and the Marquette Theatre is used by students and faculty.

Bobet Hall was built in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bobet, donors of library equipment, stacks and books. The building was begun in 1923 and completed in 1924. Today, it is the College of Arts and Science. Common curriculum classes are also conducted in Bobet Hall.

In September, 1947, a "glorified" temporary building was built on campus to serve as the College of Business Administration until the university outgrew it. The building was named for Mrs. Olive A. Stallings in 1955. Mrs. Stallings had contributed a vast amount of money to Loyola. At the present time the city college offices are in Stallings, and also classes are conducted there.

The library was built in 1950 in honor of Loyola students and alumni who died in World War II. The library provides refuge for students seeking the peaceful atmosphere needed for academic endeavors. It contains 218,631 volumes and 1,864 periodicals.

Biever Hall, men's residence, was dedicated in 1964. It was named in honor of Albert H. Biever, S. J., first president of Loyola University. Biever Hall houses undergraduate men and women. It is a six story residence with a capacity of housing 410 students.

Past Reflected In Buildings

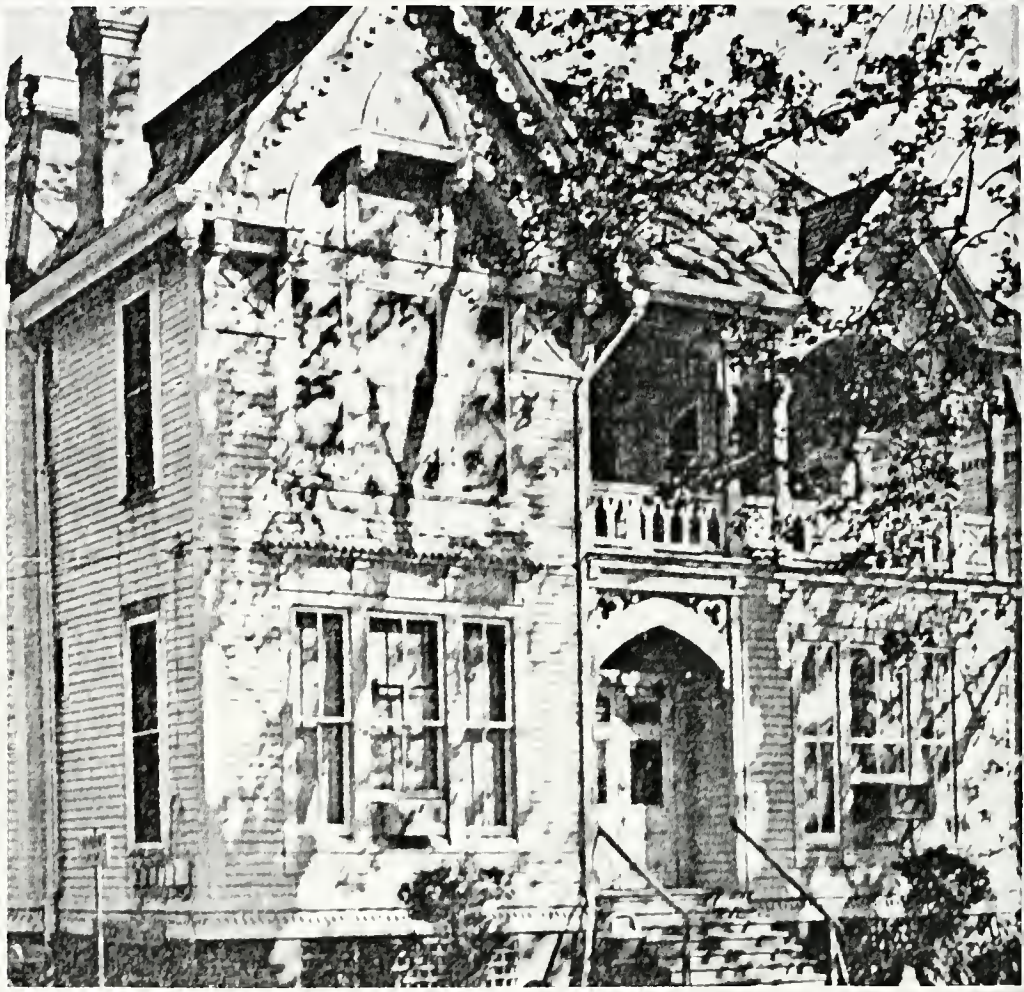
"The spirit engendered by the original Loyola university campus has receded into a cloud of lost time." Those words were written in a past issue of the Maroon and help explain how buildings illustrate changing times on the Loyola campus. Only memories, pictures and printed words remain of "landmarks" from Loyola's past. St. Charles Avenue is registered as an Historic Landmark and Loyola University shares in the long and famous history of "The avenue".

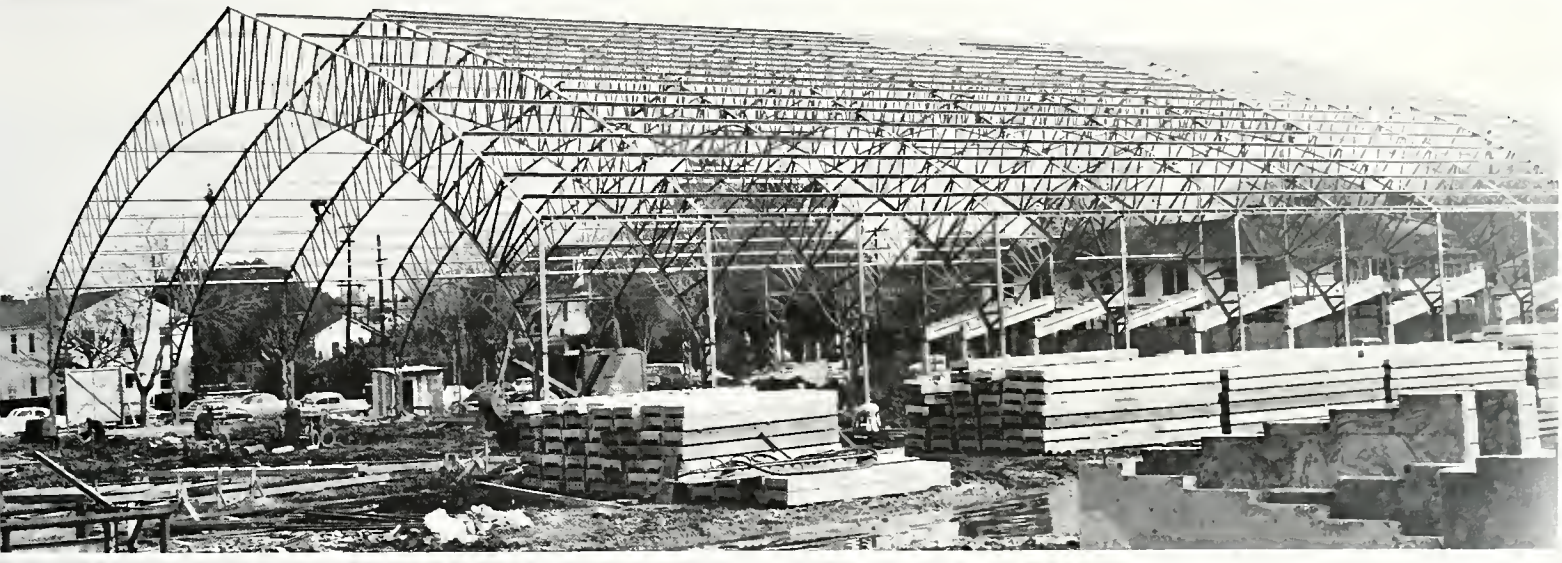


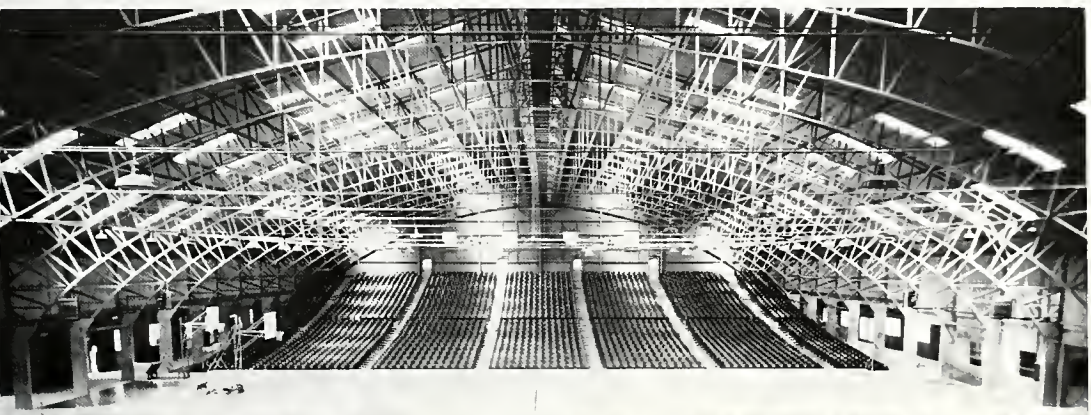
Three private residences on Marquette Place were purchased in 1925 from the New Orleans Province to be used as dormitories especially for athletes. Beginning with the building nearest the campus, they were named the Texas, the Utah and the Oklahoma. The Texas was the original Jesuit residence. Later it was used for offices and classrooms and was called Biever Hall. It was razed in 1968.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps. (ROTC) program was established at Loyola in 1947. In 1955 the ROTC moved on to Loyola's campus, and six one-story army surplus buildings were added to the campus to provide the extra space needed for returning war veterans.

In May, 1890 the parish of Most Holy Name of Jesus was established. The original Holy Name of Jesus church was dedicated on May 29, 1892. It was built entirely of native wood and was of Gothic design. The church was referred to as "Little Jesuit" and was situated on land which is now the Communications-/Music Complex.

On May 1, 1913, the groundbreaking began for the church that we know today as the Most Holy Name of Jesus church. The church was being built with the financial assistance of Kate McDermott in memory of her brother, the late Thomas C. McDermott. The cornerstone was laid on January 2, 1916, but construction made slow progress due to World War I. The building was finally dedicated on December 9, 1918.





The first Loyola gymnasium, a small wooden structure, was built facing Freret Street in 1920. In 1923 Loyola added a football stadium which seated several thousand fans. The new Loyola Field House was built in 1954 and seated over six tbousand fans.

Beginning Loyola's Future

The science complex was completed in 1969 and named for J. Edgar Monroe. At the present time Monroe Hall contains both offices and classroom space for the science, mathematics, political science and computer departments.

Branch Knox Miller Hall was completed in 1973. It was named in honor of the father of Alice J. Miller, friend and benefactor of Loyola University. Today Miller Hall houses the college of business, a portion of the library resources, the university archives and the media center.

C. T. Vincent

The Communications/Music Complex was completed in 1983. It is the newest building on the Loyola campus. It houses administrative offices, the Wolf and Maroon Loyola publications, communications and music libraries, WLDC closed-circuit radio studio and Roussel Hall. These are only a portion of the many organizations, functions and classes that are conducted in this the newest of the Loyola University buildings.

In 1964, the Danna Center was completed. The center was named for Dr. Joseph A. Danna, dean of Loyola's medical school from 1916 until its closing in 1925. Upon his death in 1955, Dr. Danna left the residue of his estate to Loyola. The Danna Center is a student services building and is a popular meeting place for students and faculty alike.

Buddig Hall, women's residence, was dedicated in 1966 in honor of Henrietta Buddig Legier, wife of John Legier, friend and benefactor of Loyola University. Buddig Hall is a twelve story residence with a capacity of accommodating 429 women.

A Glimpse Of The Past

The pictures on these two pages are a selection from previous issues of the Wolf. They portray scenes from Loyola's past, including the dental and pharmaceutical labs, faculty and student life.

Loyola In A Changing World

The last seventy-five years have been full of changes for the world, and certainly Loyola is no exception. This is perhaps best illustrated by the coming and goings of the different academic disciplines that have been offered for study. For example, did you know that from 1917 to 1919 Loyola had a school of Nautical Sciences, Marine Architecture, and Marine Engineering? Or about the School of Oratory that existed from 1917 until 1920? For a short time in the same period there were also schools of Mechanics, Architecture, Civil Engineering, Post-Graduate Medicine, and a Wireless Telegraph School. For a time during WW II, there was even a Civilian Pilot Training Program.

Today's Loyola student that comes to study business or communications might be surprised to learn that some of the school's more popular courses of study in the past included Dentistry, and Pharmacy, both of which lasted quite a long time. The school of Dentistry was not phased out until 1972 and Medical Technology was just closed last year. The ROTC program is being moved to another location.

The schools and colleges presently a part of Loyola are the College of Arts and Sciences, which has been around as long as Loyola; the College of Business Administration, which was added in 1947; the School of Law, which was established for the night division in 1914 and the day division in 1925; the College of Music, started in 1932; and City College, which grew from the school of Commerce and Finance which was founded in 1917. The photos on these two pages are a glimpse into the Loyola of past years . . .

Traditions Continue

It is with great pleasure that the 1986-87 "Wolf yearbook staff" has presented a collection of memories and traditions in celebration of the 75th year of Loyola's history.

It would seem appropriate, after focusing on Loyola's past, to present a "new beginning," one of many which is a part of Loyola tradition.

On March 16, 1987, Margaret Mary Garitty, a 1986 graduate of LSU in petroleum engineering, was married to Anthony Joseph Zelenka, a 1986 graduate of Loyola with a degree in management/marketing. The ceremony was held in the Holy Name Church. Members of both the bride and grooms families have also been a part of the "Loyola family" history. Mr. Earl James Garitty Jr., father of the bride, graduated from Loyola in 1947 from the School of Pharmacy. Mr. Daniel Edward Zelenka, father of the groom, graduated from Loyola in 1962 from the Dental School

The Holy Name of Jesus Church is the facal point of spiritual life on the Loyola campus. It is also the location of many weddings and special school ceremonies.

The Mass on the Holy Spirit is one of Loyola's most enduring traditions. Held in the Church of the Most Holy Name of Jesus, it allows the university community a chance to unite and give thanks for another year of quality Catholic education in the south. According to many, it is the best way to get the school year off to a good start.

After the ceremony, a boxed lunch picnic was sponsored by Campus Ministry in the Activities Quad. It provided a relaxed setting as the many faculty, staff and students in attendence chatted about plans for the coming school year.

Fire Up Loyola

"Fire Up, Loyola!" This cry echoed through the halls of our university during the Fall semester as student leaders banned together to encourage participation in all facets of the school by students, faculty and administration. The purpose of this event was to banish apathy and lack of concern, things which can ruin student body spirit.

Club Basketball

Fourteen seasons have come and gone since we last saw the Wolfpack play for Loyola. In 1972, a feeling of indifference compelled school officials to drop athletics from the university and to re-emphasize the academic atmosphere.

However, for many, the development of the mind was not enough; the recent resurgence of school spirit has brought basketball back to Loyola --- at least on the club level.

The first game of club basketball was played on October 30, 1986, at the Tulane arena. Over 1,100 fans were in attendance, the majority of whom were sporting the rarely seen school colors of maroon and gold. Students, faculty, alumni and staff cheered wildly as the Wolfpack defeated Tulane 69-61 in an exhilerating contest.

As the 15-man squad of Loyola's club basketball team will attest, the Wolfpack is back! The team is coached by Robert Reed and the Rev. Hacker J. Fagot, S.J.

Loyola is assisting in the formation of a Collegiate Club Basketball Conference in New Orleans. At the present time teams from Loyola, Tulane and Xavier University comprise the conference teams. Besides a regular schedule, the conference includes a post-season tournament.

Boat Dance

Fall is the best time of the year to go for a river cruise; crowds are small, and the weather is great! Loyola students were given a chance to enjoy the mighty Mississippi, and each other, during the Fall Boat Dance aboard the riverboat "President." The crowd's dancing teetered and tossed the steamer as it made its way through the city by night. Judging by the number of exhausted bodies making their way back to school from the river, the event was a rousing success! The festivities were sponsored jointly by the Student Government Association, Cabra, Buddig and Biever Residence Councils, the Black Student Union, the Panhellenic Council, the Interfraternity Council, the International Student Union and LUCAP. Hey guys ...how about getting together for another one next year?

Winter Wonderland

On a cool day in December, the near-impossible happened: it snowed in New Orleans, but just at Loyola. Everyone was treated to a "snowfall" of about five inches, much to their delight. The "snow" was actually twenty tons of crushed ice, dumped on the grass in the Activities Quad between Bobet Hall and the Danna Center. It was "Winter Wonderland," a fun-filled afternoon of snowy games, sponsored by the "Student Union Variety Unlimited" committee and Oshman's Sporting Goods Stores. Activities included "snow limbo" and other games. Christmas carols were sung by the Loyola Chorale, Santa Claus made an appearance, and the "Loyola Snow Wolf" was on hand to pose for photos with students. Eggnog and hot chocolate flowed freely.

All of the carefully thought-out plans quickly crumbled, as the snow hit the ground. Students dug in at lightening speed and no one is sure who was the first to begin throwing snowballs.

For those who had never before experienced snow, or to those to whom "crushed ice" was just another "Slurpee," it was an intriguing (and chilly) sensation. They soon caught on, and before long joined in, tossing the round, white missiles like everyone else!

An attempt was made to start a round of "limbo" but no progress could be made amid the constant barrage of snow from every conceivable direction. The event's organizers quickly gave in, resigning themselves to the unorganized aerial warfare that showed no sign of letting up.

Many prospective All-Star pitchers got in their day's practice, and there certainly was no shortage of catchers (intentional or otherwise!) on this special day at Loyola.

The day's battles came to an end only when the ammunition supply began to melt and dinner-time approached. At sunset only a couple of "snowbird Yankees" remained, and even they soon left, having thrown snowballs to their hearts' content.

Dating Game

"Bachelor number one ...if you could be any animal, what would you be and why?" Is this kind of question the best way to get to know a person better?! It is if you're playing the Dating Game! Loyola students dusted off their best lines and took a shot at finding Mr. or Ms. "Right" in their own edition of the Dating Game held on campus during the fall semester. When asked whether this was an efficient date-getting method, an anonymous "bachelorette" replied, "Yes, why not? It is a lot more interesting, too." Undoubtedly so, but does the type of animal one would like to become really say much about one's character? "Sure," replied the bachelorette, "if they say they want to be a vampire bat, you cross them right off your list!"

Streetcar Party

One of the highlights of the fall semester was the SGA sponsored streetcar party. A rattling streetcar, a brassy jazz band, people enjoying themselves — what else could be more New Orleans? The Loyola SGA provided the atmosphere and our students provided the action. People packed the streetcar for the party, which took place in transit.

Fall Fest

Fallfest is undoubtedly the most successful T.G.I.F. of the fall semester. This year, the event was held on a very summery October 3rd. All in attendance were treated to the music of Uptown Sounds, and enjoyed good food, drink, and the company of others. Sponsors for this year's Fallfest were the Loyola Union, Buddig Residence Council, and Miller Beer. A splendid time was guaranteed for all!!!!!

The photos on this page show some of the highlights of the Fallfest; Uptown Sounds rocks Loyola, and students get into the act.

Hands Across Loyola

In celebration of Hunger Awareness Week, LUCAP sponsored "Hands Across Loyola" on April 10th. This was just one of the week-long events which also included: a concert featuring Charmaine Neville, a Tuesday fast, a mass and a Third World Dinner.

Father Carter joined Loyola students in support of Hunger Awareness Week. The vast line of students and staff that stretched through the campus symbolized a unity and desire to help those less fortunate. World hunger is a serious matter of concern and our "Loyola family" made a vital contribution to this cause.

Toga Party

"Certainly not the average campus attire!" That is what onlookers would say when passing Loyola on March 20th. The "Toga" dress was part of the TGIF Greek week. As well as providing entertainment for the students, the events of this special week gave these young people opportunity for community involvement.

Otis Day

Otis Day and the Knights performed at the "world's largest toga party" on March 20th, at the TGIF in the quad in honor of Greek week. The concert was sponsored by the Loyola Union's Contemporary Sounds Committee. The band was made famous by the movie "Animal House". In accordance with the theme, students were asked to wear togas to the TGIF.

Students were delighted with the music and personality of Otis Day. Students were sometimes participants during the concert and Otis gladly signed autographs. This Greek sponsored event provided canned food to the New Orleans Food Bank. Canned food was the admission price for the concert.

The "Otis Day and the Knights" concert was the finale to Greek Week. MTV was on campus taping portions of the concert for its music news program. The "National Lampoon" was also on campus providing live performers and music, movie clips, vintage performance clips and "Animal House" giveaways.

Santa's Calling

As the holiday season quickly approaches, the minds of Loyola students fondly stray to thoughts of Christmas break, Christmas parties, mom's home-cooking and Santa Claus. Santa Claus!! Aren't college students just a little old to believe in the jolly old man with the long white beard and the twinkle in his eye? Actually, these Loyola students took time to brighten the Christmas season for some boy or girl with a special call from the "grand old man" himself.

Christmas

The joyful festivities of the holiday, the giving and receiving of gifts and the special moments with friends make this the "most wonderful time of the year". The Highlight of the activities on the Loyola campus is the annual quad mass. The mass provides each student the opportunity to share the love and unity of the "Loyola family" collectively, while reflecting inwardly on each individual blessing of today, memory of yesterday and hope for tomorrow.

TGIF

After an exhausting week of planning, preparation, activities and classes, Loyola students have good reason to be joyful when they hear these four beautiful letters so often said in one breath "TGIF". We also thank each organization or group which helped in providing activities for these weekly events.

Good friends and good music seem to blend together to make the TGIF time so meaningful.

Whether TGIF includes just relaxing with a friend or releasing energy in a group athletic event, the time shared together is always special.

Quizbowl

"Fads" come and go and have always been as much a part of American history as hot dogs and baseball. "Trivia" is one of those games that has suddenly become a household word. People meet together in small groups and at parties just to play "Trivia". Loyola was no exception as "Quizbowl" took place during "Unionweek". Fraternity and sorority students battled for the correct answers and winning scores for their team. Winners received prizes such as bookstore coupons, radios, T.V.'s and many other prizes.

Int'l Week & 3rd World Dinner

The third world dinner, sponsored by LUCAP as part of the Hunger Awareness Week, gave Loyola students the opportunity to gain new knowledge and understanding of countries and people far less fortunate than themselves. It also increased their awareness of what could be done to help and to take an active part in the plight of their fellowman.

Through display, pamphlets and educational material, we gained information about Third World Countries. Through conversation with students and representatives, we were made aware that we are not alone in our fight.

Roommate Game

One of the most challenging of all college experiences is learning to live with and adjust to a "roommate". The Loyola Union's Variety Unlimited Committee presented "The Roommate Game" on February 16th in the Wolf Pub. The evening gave opportunity for students to learn just how compatable they have become during the weeks and months since becoming part of the "Loyola family".

Joy! Surprise! Embarrassment! Anxiety! are just a few words that describe the students feelings as they wait for the response of their roommate during the "Roommate Game". Students received prizes for their ability to predict accurate answers for their roommates.

"I can't believe that" or "I knew she would say that" were just a few of the comments students made after hearing their roommate's answers. The students enjoyed the experience of learning more about the people they have spent so much time with during the school year.

LUCAP Rally

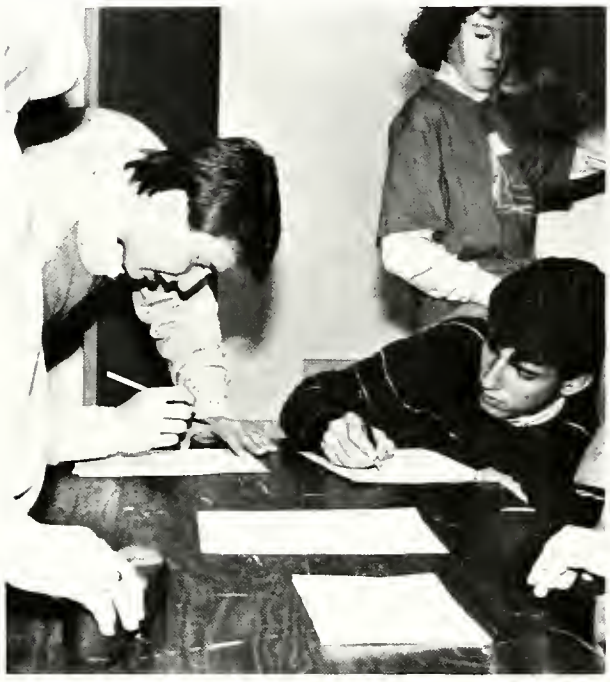
LUCAP is an important part of the Loyola community. It began as an underhand of campus ministry and continues to be a valuable part of many support groups in the New Orleans area. This years LUCAP rally introduced new members to the many contributions the organization makes. The New Orleans food bank and the Crescent house for battered women are examples of the many projects LUCAP members are involved in.



Students make new friends at the annual LUCAP rally and are introduced to the many activities they can become involved in.

Intramurals

Flag Football

Ahhh . . . the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat! These emotions were very much a part of the Fall Flag Football tournament. Coed, mens, and womens teams met several times weekly in the Residential Life quad and mustered all of the effort and team spirit they could in order to emerge victorious. But, winning isn't everything, and even those who did not come out on top admitted that playing flag football was a highlight of their semester. To the winners, congratulatios! Everyone else . . . thanks for participating, and better luck next year!

Basketball

Loyola University offers a variety of activities for students who are interested in playing sports for recreation as well as for competition. Students enjoy the physical benefits of systematic practice and games. The thrill of being part of a winning team, or even the disappointment of working together with classmates when your best just hasn't been good enough, is all part of the college experience. Intramural basketball provides keen competition for enthusiastic Loyola students.

Softball &

Fresh air, sunshine, team spirit, bases, bats and an over-sized ball can only mean one intramural sport, "cabbage ball". This co-educational activity provides hours of recreation and fun for the campus family. This sport is always competitive and is a sure "hit" each school year at Loyola.

Cabbageball

Ultimate Frisbee

Just ask any of these students, this is the "ultimate" of all of the intramural sports at Loyola. This is "Ultimate Frisbee". This sport is very much a part of student life on campus. Students enjoy the rugged competition, the team spirit generated and the pleasure of participation in this intense out-door sport.

Baccalaureate Mass

Graduation festivities began on May 17th with the celebration of Baccalaureate Mass. Families and friends of the Loyola University class of 1987 gathered in the Holy Name Church. These solemn moments provided time for graduates to reminisce about their college experiences and quietly reflect on their plans and goals for the future. This visit to the Holy Name Church would be the last for many students, but these moments will remain special to students, family, faculty and friends.

Commencement

The seventy-sixth commencement of Loyola University, New Orleans, Louisiana was held on May 18, 1987, at 3 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium. The Most Reverend Philip M. Hannan, M.A., S.T.L., J.C.D., D.D., Archbishop of New Orleans presided. Reverend Ernest J. Burrus, S.J. delivered the address. Conferring of degrees was presided over by Reverend James C. Carter, S.J., Ph.D.

Loyola University At 75

For 75 years, Loyola University has been a major educational asset for New Orleans, the area and state. Thousands of its alumni have contributed immeasurably in numerous fields of endeavor to the welfare of the city, surrounding communities, the state and, indeed, the nation.

Loyola turned 75 Wednesday. Special events in celebration of the anniversary are planned later this month and this fall.

As it enters its 76th year, the Jesuit university on St. Charles Avenue remains faithful to its original theological purpose. At the same time, it has grown more progressive while continuing to emphasize values, ethics, and liberal arts.

Loyola began in 1877 when a few Jesuit priests operated the college of the Immaculate Conception, a school for boys at Baronne and Common streets. In 1910, that school was converted into a high school. Its college department was transferred to Loyola College at the university's present location.

The St. Charles Avenue site had been chosen six years earlier by Rev. Albert Biever, Loyola's founder and first president.

In 1912, the college, Loyola has grown into a major university whose accomplishments and quality of education are widely recognized.

Today, Loyola possesses a modern music and communications complex, a new law school campus and a $230 million endowment, which is the largest among the nation's 28 Jesuit universities.

Meanwhile, the kind of basic liberal arts curriculum traditionally offered by Loyola is gaining new support across the nation. Loyola still requires each student to take at least 60 hours of English, mathematics, science, religious studies and philosophy.

Loyola's enrollment continues to grow. Its enrollment of 5,210 last fall was the largest in its history. Increasing numbers of student are taking full advantage of the university's liberal arts curriculum, working toward degrees in such subjects as English, political science and philosophy. Thus Loyola appears to be well postioned in the mainstream of higher education.

For its quality education and reasonable tuition, Loyola has achieved national recognition. Because of its substantial endowment, it has been able to keep its tuition slightly lower than the average of other private universities.

For three-quarters of a century, Loyola has been one of New Orleans' most important institutions of higher education, providing generations of graduates the knowledge to improve their lives and contribute to a better world.

To the university's present stewards we offer our gratitude and congratulations.

Theta Phi Alpha

Theta Phi Alpha is a national panhellenic Catholic sorority which was founded in 1912, on the campus of the University of Michigan. Theta Phi's can be found participating in a variety of campus organizations including the Union, SGA, Campus Ministry, LUCAP, Liaisons, academic honor societies and many others.

Besides this busy schedule, the Theta Phi's manage to find the time to participate in many social activities including their annual Hawaii Five-O party, "Ain't Nothin' More New Orleans than Theta Phi Alpha and Dixie" party, Christmas Cocktail, Spring Formal and Founder's Day.

With all of these activities, Theta Phi still managed to maintain the highest Greek G.P.A. at Loyola.

Theta Phi Alpha prides itself on being composed of well-rounded, unique individuals bound together by a strong bond of sisterhood.

Adhering to its motto of strength, unity and action, Loyola's oldest social fraternity proved its leadership abilities by the participation of its members in numerous campus organizations and other facets of the Loyola community.

Beggars demonstrated its initiative early on in the school year by hosting the first Inter-Greek and Moderators party with representatives and moderators of each Loyola Greek organization in attendance.

Throughout the year, members belonged to organizations such as the SGA, Liaisons, Union, IFC, LUCAP, Wolf yearbook and many others.

In the Spring semester, the fraternity participated in the campus-wide food drive and collected 1,052 food items for the poor and hungry of New Orleans.

In addition to these activities, Beggars had a full calendar of events including social functions such as the alumni cocktail, Back to School Blowout, Uncle Sam Jam, Halloween party, Fall Semi-Formal, Christmas cocktail, Bahama Mama, rush barbeque, rush cocktail, Spring Formal, the 1st annual Maw and Paw Jams party and mixers with Loyola's sororities. Beggars teams also participated in over ten intramural sports including men's flag football and basketball in which Beggars teams finished as runner-ups.

The efforts of a strong and successful rush led to the induction of 18 new members, each a unique individual who has postively contributed to the fraternity in his own way.

The school year was a busy but highly productive one for the fraternity, and its membership is proud of its accomplishments.

RIGHT: Loyola is unique! From the palm trees and trolley cars on St. Charles Avenue, to the rich Jesuit heritage and wide variety of geographic, ethnic and cultural student body, Loyola is special. "Lagniappe" provides the new student with that "little bit extra", and that spirit continues throughout the entire year. BELOW: Throughout the school year, Loyola provides students with the opportunity to learn and explore many areas of interest and concern to them. A great number of people took advantage of the symposium honoring Louisiana women.

LEFT: Take five! With all the "hustle and bustle" of campus life, those quiet moments of taking a break and enjoying the beautiful weather and lovely campus are special times. BELOW: Cash or charge? Your driver's license and one piece of identification please. These students may feel like they are at the mall shopping instead of at college.

College life consists of a wide variety of activities, interests and involvements. The Loyola tradition demands excellence in academics and these students are conscientious in their daily studies.

"Two bits, four bits, six bits a dollar, all for 'our team' stand up and holler." That cheer has been around since our parents were young and perhaps even since our grandparents' time. There is just nothing like good competition to boost school spirit ---- as these fans demonstrate.

University Relations

University Relations

The sport of basketball has always been an exciting sport for both the participants and the spectators. That excitement seems to intensify when Loyola and Tulane "square-off". This event is always a hi-light of the athletic year.

niversity Relations

There is nothing like good entertainment, especially when it is provided by fellow classmates. It is just a way to "unwind" after a hectic week of study. These students certainly provided a "fun-filled" afternoon.

Leave it to the ladies! When these sorority sisters begin to perform, all eyes are on them. What a delight to take time from a busy schedule for some good campus entertainment.

"Faces and Places" ----- that's what it's all about. College students build relationships that, in some cases, may last for a lifetime. How grateful we are for the college years we enjoy and the friends we make.

As seniors graduate from high school each spring, a chapter in their lives has closed. But as one chapter is closed, another is just opening. College life brings new goals, new directions, new schedules, new adjustments and new friends. How grateful we are for the new relationships we share with our "college family".

"If each one would light just one little candle, what a brighter world it would be." We may have heard that expression many times but during the Christmas candle light caroling, we felt the true spirit of Christmas. These potential Loyolans truely symbolize the spirit of the holidays.

"I'm dreaming of a white Christmas!" Well, dreaming is all Loyola students will do if they expect to see snow in New Orleans at Christmas-time. But, could it be, the ground is covered with snow? To the total delight of staff and students, young and old alike spent hours frolicking in the snow. Thanks to the efforts of "Student Union Variety Unlimited" and "Oshman's Sporting Goods Stores," this became an unforgettable event for the 1986-87 school year.

The "Quad" is the center of many activities on the Loyola campus. Ranging from concerts, picnics, union functions, parties and games, the "Quad" is a favorite place for Loyola students.

versity Relations

Campus life is filled with constant activity, most of which demands group involvement. Rarely does a student find the time or the place for the quiet solitude this Loyola student is enjoying.

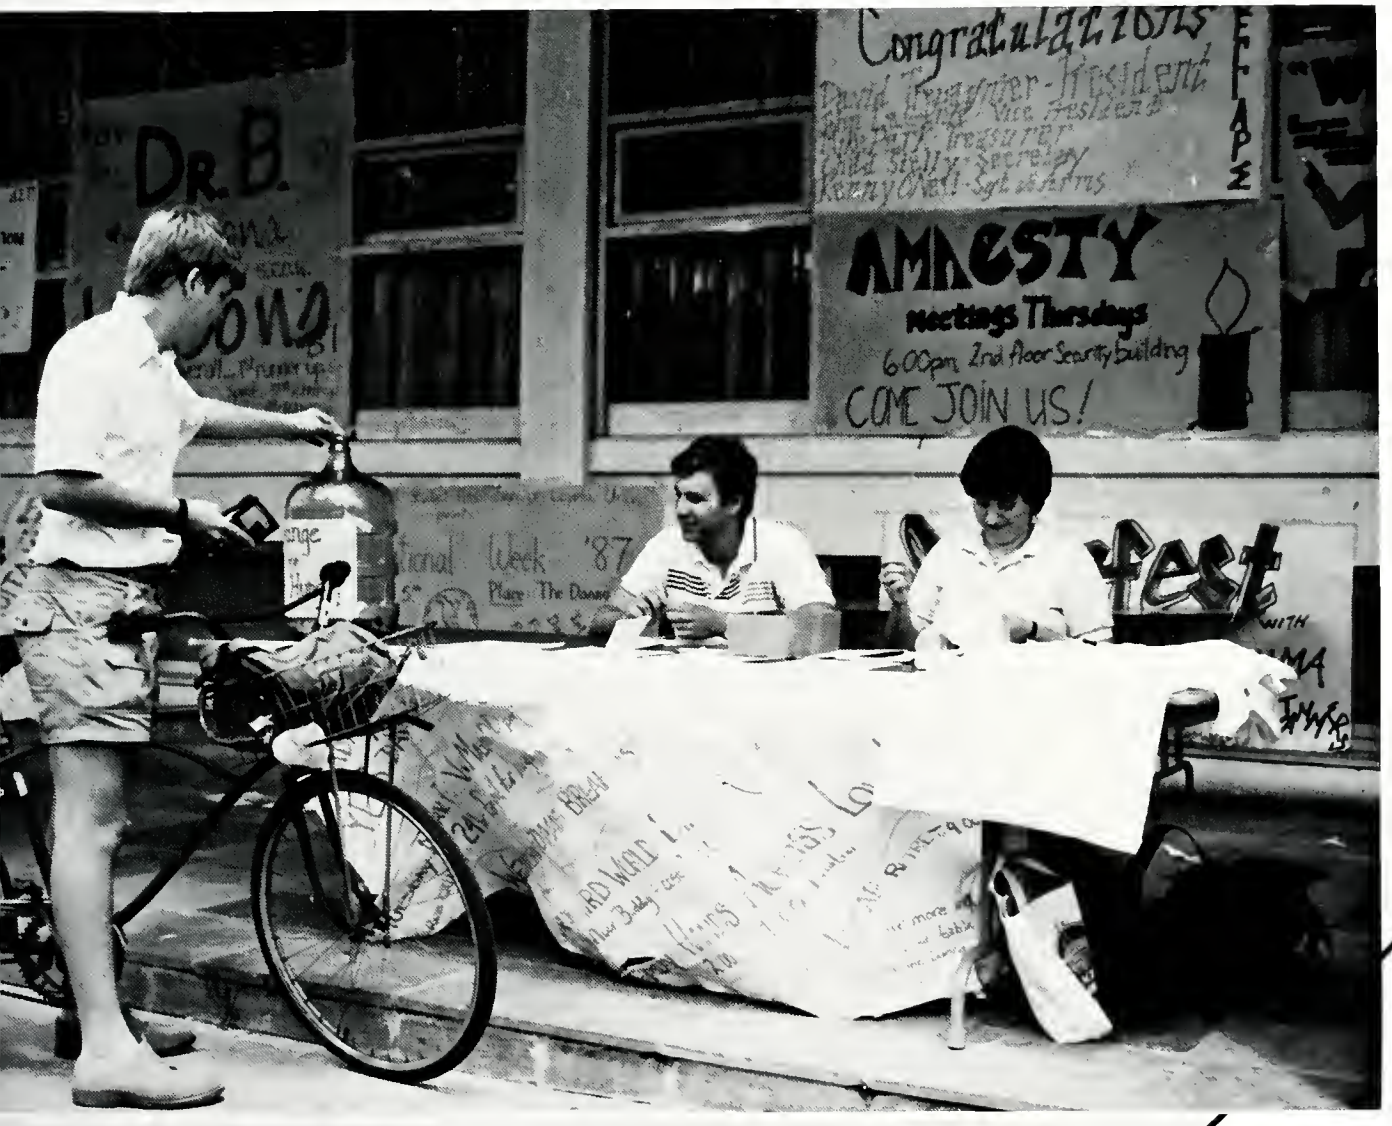
"When do I leave for Hollywood? I'm sure I'll be discovered soon. Think of the thrill it is for my friends to be able to experience all this talent. Where else than at Loyola?"

Fraternities and sororities play an important role in campus life at Loyola. Friendships are formed and memories are made during the school year as students "work and play" together.

LEFT: "That old gang of mine." Loyola provides fun-filled activities and gives students the opportunity to express their "talents". BELOW: Loyola students contribute to a wide variety of programs and seminars sponsored by various groups and organizations within the school.



The Jesuits have always played an important role in Loyola history. It is because of their vision that this institution exists today. Their influence is still an important part of Loyola tradition. Whether in the classroom or through an informal conversation, they help establish solid relationships with students.

This familiar face is Russ Cresson. He is not only well-known to current Loyola staff and students but to countless graduates and friends from years past. He has served as photographer on certain occasions, for the "Wolf", the "Maroon", the "University" and has taught "photography", on certain occasions, for the past 38 years. He retired August 1st, 1987, from these positions, but will continue to work part-time for the Loyola archives. We salute you, Mr. Cresson, and thank you for a job well done.

"Happy days are here again." The seasons change, time passes, but good friends remain. The "pub" is a favorite meeting place on campus.

"Let's light the christmas tree." A favorite christmas song and a favorite time of the year. The words on this shirt, "Mistletoe Madness", express the "lighter" side of the christmas spirit.

The music department has always been a valuable part of Loyola. Here, students demonstrate their talents and abilities. Whether performing for a school-wide concert or playing and singing informally, music adds to campus life.

That special day arrives --- The reason for Loyola's existence. "You have prepared us to take our place in society and for this we say, thanks."

"Smiling faces and very special places." These are common occurrences on the Loyola campus.

LEFT: "Anchors away!" These "Theta Phi Alpha" enjoy a special moment together. ABOVE: These "Beggars" enjoy a special moment together also, but in this case, it is competition and an enjoyable afternoon.

The "Wolf" Yearbook staff wishes to thank D. Brion Ebey for all of his hard work and diligence in the ad campaign. RIGHT: As shown, a personal body guard was needed to protect him from area businesses because of his persistence. ABOVE: We hope his efforts did not contribute to this present state.

"Party-time! All-work-and-no-play!" You know the rest of the saying. Here, students enjoy some "care-free moments".

The Broadway campus houses the Loyola law school. It is a vital part of the Loyola community. This is a beautiful view of the courtyard taken from Cabra Hall.

Editor's Page

The 1986-87 Wolf Yearbook staff has had the unique privilege of presenting to the Loyola community the history of the 75th Diamond Anniversary of Loyola University.

It is with pride and pleasure that we have researched, compiled and presented not only the events and activities of the current year but also many of the special events and people of the past.

Please take a moment to read the introduction of this 46th volume of the Wolf Yearbook. It truly is your heritage.

I wish to express appreciation from the communications department to the many people whose contributions have made possible the publication of the Wolf Yearbook.

Sincerely,

Mark McLean
